

The French Steak House was the place for Easter Brunch Aruban Style!

A lovely buffet accompanied by the island sounds of Manchebo Resort's House Band called "Saus" had both guests and service help dancing around the French Steak House on Easter morning.

Giovanni Bermudez and his clan found it the perfect place to celebrate the holiday, as did the Pietersz family, all three generations. Daughter Miriam and her husband treated her ninety-three year old father Alberto Piertsz to the holiday brunch in the charming surroundings, and she reports that he "enjoyed the morning completely." A brief bit of fancy footwork to a favorite Salsa song saw them out the door and helped close the restaurant for the day, as they were the last and very reluctant to leave.

Young and old alike enjoyed the fresh selection and the chef's decorative watermelon bunny, and many they took home a cute little trinket box filled with Easter candies as a memento; a special gift from Ike Cohen and the Manchebo. Aside from gift boxes, there was entertainment and balloon swans for the children, and some parents that wanted their own balloon bunny as well!

When all was said and done, one final trinket box remained, which Events Manager Jackie Quant presented to Operations Manager Rita van Vollevelde in celebration for the day. Everyone was pleased with the feast and the ambiance, for a holiday celebration at the Manchebo that was as much fun for the staff as it was for the guests!
